

WHO INVENTED ELECTRONICS?

Electronic Technocrat
TECHTE GUY

The history of electronics began to evolve separately from that of electricity late in the 19th century with the identification of the electron by the English physicist Sir Joseph John Thomson and the measurement of its electric charge by the American physicist Robert A. Millikan in 1909.

